

FRENCH IN ALSACE ARE WITHIN THIRTY MILES OF THE RHINE RIVER

OCCUPY HEIGHTS SOUTH-EAST OF STEINBACH AND THREATEN FURTHER ADVANCES.

NO CHANGE IN POLAND

Germans Continue to Deliver Furious Attacks on Bzura-Rawka Line But Without Definite Decision.

The German defense in Alsace is still losing ground before the French advance. Today's official statement from Berlin as well as Paris speaks of fighting to the east of Steinbach, showing that the French have pushed beyond this recently captured village. The Paris announcement gives a first intimation of another French advance into Alsace near Oberberg, fourteen miles west of the capital of upper Alsace.

Infantry fighting has been resumed in Belgium and the French reports state that ground was won by the allies near Nieupoort. Elsewhere the activity was chiefly on the part of the artillery.

Few further particulars were received concerning the eastern campaign. The Berlin war office stated that an advance east of Bolimow in the direction of Warsaw is being continued, although Petrograd claims that the Germans after capturing German positions at Bolimow, were compelled to abandon them.

The war spirit of Italy has been revived by the death on the French battlefield of a grandee of the Italian aristocracy. Italy will have about 1,000,000 men by the end of this month and a reserve of another million is being formed.

The plan for certification of American forces before they leave America for ports decided upon in Washington yesterday, has been communicated to the British government. It is expected in London to assist materially in solving the difficulties created by German interference with American shipping.

Further Russian successes in operations against the Austrians are described in unofficial dispatches from Petrograd. The Russian army has captured eight Hungarian towns and surrounded several divisions of Austrian troops in the Carpathians. There was no official confirmation of this announcement, however, and the latest announcement from Vienna asserts that the Austrian forces in Galicia have captured strong positions and are preparing further operations.

Although it is admitted in Petrograd that the Germans occupied Russian positions at Bolimow at the battlefront before Warsaw, Petrograd reports that the Germans were again driven back, abandoning six machine guns.

London, Jan. 5.—The right wing of the French army is today less than thirty miles from the river Rhine, holding the Alsacian village of Steinbach and the heights to the southeast of that village after one of the most stubborn localized fights of the war. At no other point of the western front has there been any noteworthy change.

No Change in Poland.
In Poland there has been little shift in the relative positions of the armies. The German continued to deliver their furious and intermittent attacks on the Bzura-Rawka line. To the south the Russians have swept forward to Suzawa, near the Roumanian frontier. In the Caucasus the Turkish invaders and Russians are apparently still fighting over their battle in the region of Sari Kanysh, both sides claiming a victory.

The French progress in upper Alsace is probably the most significant news from the western front in a number of weeks, and by some observers here it is taken to indicate future attempts on the part of the allies to break through in the Alsace, maintaining meanwhile a base at Belfort.

For the moment the swampy condition of the ground in West Flanders precludes a general flanking move west in this locality. Only a slight advance to the southeast, British commanders point out today, will give the allies possession of the village of Senneville. They now hold the heights to the west of this town and its fall would throw open the way to Muelbaesen.

Tell of French Gains.
Paris, Jan. 5.—The French official statement given out by the war office this afternoon conveys the first intimation of another French advance into Alsace at a point near Orbery, which is fourteen miles west of Colmar.

It says also that the French advance in the direction of Senneville has been maintained. There are six points on the battle front where artillery engagements have taken place and the Belgian artillery is described as active in Flanders. Advances near St. Georges also are claimed.

Claim French Repulsed.
Berlin, Jan. 5.—The German official statement today says the fighting at a point two miles to the east of Steinbach resulted in the French being driven back. French attacks were repulsed in the Arras and near Arras. In northern Poland the situation is said to be unchanged, with the east of the Bzura river the German attacks are progressing. Emperor William replying to a congratulatory message from Archduke Frederick of Austria telegraphed as follows:

My best wishes to your imperial highness and your brave Austro-Hungarian troops who in the past year have shown an unchanging spirit of comradeship toward their German allies. With our combined forces we will continue the fight and with our eyes toward God we will win, and de-clusive success for our just cause will not be wanting. (Signed) "WILLIAM."

Kaiser Eats "War Bread."
Emperor William has given orders that the so-called "war bread" be served to himself.

This bread is called also "Capital K" bread. It consists of 85 per cent rye flour and 15 per cent potato flakes. It is consumed in accordance with a war time proclamation with the idea of making the supply of foodstuff in the empire last longer. Up to the present time it has not been bought readily by the general public. It is hoped, however, that the decision of the emperor to eat this bread himself will influence the people to follow his example.

Bombs Cause Explosion.
Berlin, via wireless to London, Jan. 5.—Announcement is made here that the portion of Russian Poland occupied by the Germans has been provided with a civil administration under Herr von Brandenstein.

German airmen it is also announced have dropped bombs on British ammunition stores on the outskirts of Rosendael and Goudeskerque near Dunkirk, France. The explosion, it is stated, killed and injured a hundred persons and set fire to a portion of one of the villages. News from Durazzo, Albania, states that in the first fight in that vicinity, a number of followers of Essad Pasha, the provisional president of Albania, who held back, were hanged.

Russians Invade Hungary.
Paris, Jan. 5.—A Petrograd dispatch published in L'Information reports that the Russians have occupied eight Hungarian towns and surrounded several divisions of the Austrian army are surrounded in the Carpathians.

U. S. MARINE BANNER IN GERMAN HARBOR
Daring American Skipper Runs Blockade and Mine Fields.—Takes First U. S. Ship to Bremen in Forty Years.

Bremen, Jan. 5.—Owing to the daring of an American skipper, the steamer Elmonte, which sailed from Galveston, Texas, December 3, arrived at Bremen on January 1. The Elmonte brought more than 6,000 tons of cotton, the first to reach that port during the war. She was the first American merchantship to visit Bremen in forty years. Captain Pinchum of the Elmonte, after a voyage across the Atlantic, took a German pilot at Deal, and as England does not now class cotton as contraband, but fearing that the pilot would be informed of his capture, the German waters the captain dropped him at the Hook of Holland. At the Hook Dutch pilots refused to assist the American skipper saying that it was impossible to make the trip on account of the mines.

Capt. Pinchum was determined to go on, saying that he would take his ship to her destination or know the reason why. Accordingly he proceeded without a pilot, picking his own course without mine sharks or other aid. He made his way to Bremen, greatly to the amazement of the Germans, who were much interested in his adventure.

GARABALDI'S DEATH STIRRING ITALIANS

Death of Lieutenant On French Battlefield Causes Revival of War Sentiment in Italy.

Rome, Jan. 5.—The death of the French battlefield of Lieutenant Bruno Garibaldi has caused a revival of public sentiment throughout Italy in favor of war. This feeling, it is being augmented by the belief that the Italian military preparations have now been perfected. About 1,000,000 men will be under arms within the present month and another million are being formed into reserve ready to be called out at a moment's notice.

All the Italian artillery regiments have been provided with new cannon, which are considered by Italian military experts to be superior to the guns of Austria-Hungary and Germany. Special secret committees are being formed for enlistment of volunteers. It is said to be the intention to form a body about 6,000 strong, the force to be commanded by Capt. Ricciotti Garibaldi, who will have his sons as lieutenants.

The same stockholders own both companies, and the boom company is being taken over because of water power right on the Menominee river, which are extensive.

Since 1888, during the forty-seven years in which the boom company has been in existence, more than 10,000,000 feet of logs have been brought down the river, which at an average price of $10 per thousand would mean $100,000,000 worth of timber.

During the rapid decline of river logging the past few years have added small amounts to the total figures. In 1914 only a little more than 25,000,000 feet of logs were floated down the river, as very small compared to 642,000,000 feet which was the run in the record year 1889, when the lumbering industry in this section was at its height. The coming season the total will not be much over 20,000,000 ft.

The circular urges that all manifests be made complete and accurate as protection against delays of American cargoes. It states that efforts to conceal the real nature of goods covered by the manifest may result in a great delay and work decided hardship to American shipping. The offer is made by the treasury department to furnish upon request of shippers agents who will supervise the loading of cargoes and furnish certificates as to completeness and accuracy of the manifests.

Ambassador Page expected to transmit Secretary Bryan's communication to the foreign office shortly. WYOMING MAY CHANGE CAPITAL TO CASPER.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Cheyenne, Wyo., Jan. 5.—A determined effort to bring about the removal of the capital of Wyoming from Cheyenne to Casper is to be inaugurated during the coming session of the legislature by Representatives Stephen Tobin and Robert Grieve. To secure effective passage, they received a vote of two thirds of each house of the legislature and the amendment must receive a majority of all votes cast at the general election.

The advocates of the change contend that Cheyenne is not centrally located and is not as readily accessible to all sections of the state as is F. Caspar.

CARBURETER SPRAY LOCAL MAN'S IDEA; GETS U. S. PATENT

Government Grants E. J. Manning Papers on Highly Efficient Gas Engine Invention.

E. J. Manning of this city has just received papers from the government patent office granting him patents on an improved two stroke cycle engine. Should Manning's idea bear out early experiments, it will cause a great revolution in the manufacture of engines. Another feature of the idea is the 50 per cent saving in fuel which the inventor claims for his vaporizer.

Mr. Manning became interested in the two cycle engine while employed by the Bicknell Manufacturing and Supply company. He has previously done considerable work in the heating and music printing line. Certain principles must be reckoned with to secure satisfactory ventilation. Manning says. It seems to him that the principles of good ventilation should hold the two cycle engine, but in examining a number of different makes of engines, he found that the principles of ventilation that he needed. It is a well known fact that the two cycle engine is very wasteful of fuel. It is found that much fuel escapes with the exhaust gases without ever being burned. About three years ago Manning had an idea of a two cycle engine that would make a new two cycle engine that should embody the principle of good ventilation. A number of the engines were built and have given very satisfactory service where they have been placed in launches on the river here. Application was made for a patent which was granted in April, 1914. The patent papers were issued Dec. 29.

Some engines of the stationary type were also built. These proved to be very economical runners and it was planned to put the engine on a motor car. In 1913 the car of private electric lighting plants. Prior to that time the gasoline on the market was what was known as the 72 test. Gasoline was high in price and in response to the popular demand for a cheap fuel, the makers withdrew the 72 gasoline from the market and replaced it with a quality that tests around 60. All gasoline engines then began to sputter and the district attorney tried on several different carbureters with his engine, but did not find one that was particularly better than any other carbureter then designed. He then turned to a new design, the carbureter on quite new and novel lines, and applied for a patent on that, which has been granted. A long line of experiments convinced Manning that his carbureter was no better than the others had been. Manning had heard that Mohammed once commanded the mountain to come to him, but when the mountain did not come Mohammed said to the mountain, "Come to me." Manning then tried on several different carbureters with his engine, but did not find one that was particularly better than any other carbureter then designed. He then turned to a new design, the carbureter on quite new and novel lines, and applied for a patent on that, which has been granted.

He then turned to a new design, the carbureter on quite new and novel lines, and applied for a patent on that, which has been granted.

Manning's latest effort is the development of a carbureter device. One patent has been allowed him on this and another one is now pending. About thirty automobiles have been equipped with this device. In a few cases as high as 50 per cent saving in fuel has been attained. An average of something like 25 per cent has been secured. Manning has been pleased to see his latest creation, the carbureter, vaporizer. It will work with any carbureter. It should be attached to the carbureter, but as there is seldom room to place it on the carbureter, it has been designed to be as near to the carbureter as possible. This device has some merits. It is attested by the fact that one of the largest and most prominent manufacturers of the automobile country is now testing it out in connection with the carbureter their firm turns out.

The spraying of fuel is not a new principle at all and carbureter manufacturers have long been fond of advertising that their make was the only kind that really did that. Various makers of the different automobile makers have made variously pictured their apparatus as a spraying device. However, Manning contends that he has the only device offered for the purpose that will stand the real test as an atomizer or true spray thrower, that is offered for attachment to the ordinary or standard design of gasoline engine of the day. Manning is a trained mechanic, having a very wide range of experience to draw from. With his good degree of persistence in sticking to a promising principle, it is fair to guess that his engine will all parts completed. It may be another one of the worthy products to be sent out of Janesville.

Acid Stomachs Are Dangerous

Common Sense Advice by a Distinguished Specialist.
"Acid" stomachs are dangerous because acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach, thus hindering and preventing the proper action of the stomach. It is a well known fact that the lining of the stomach is very delicate and is easily irritated. The text of the cases of stomach trouble from which the sufferer. Ordinary medicines and medical treatments are useless in such cases, for they leave the source of the trouble in the stomach, as dangerous as ever. The acid must be neutralized, and its formation must be stopped. The only way to do this is by the use of a powerful antacid, a simple antacid, taken in a little warm or cold water after eating, which not only neutralizes the acid, but also prevents the fermentation from which acidity is developed. Foods which ordinarily cause distention and flatulence, when taken with the antacid, are followed with a little antacid, which can be obtained from any druggist, and should always be kept handy.

METZ IS STRONGEST Fortress in Europe

Not Since Days of Roman Invasion Has Fort Been Carried By Force of Arms.—Will French Raze It?

The National Geographic Society has just prepared the following statement concerning Metz: "The fortress of Metz from Roman days has never been carried by storm. Throughout history down to 1870 it has been the strongest fortress in Europe. The French in 1870 surrendered to the Germans because of the famine and disease rather than to a pressing enemy. This almost impenetrable fortress has changed hands now and then, but these changes have been effected by treaty and not by force of arms. The Romans knew Metz, 'Divorandum' as the stronghold of the gods. Metz is the capital of German Lorraine and it is considered to possess one of the most powerful fortifications in Europe. It is the pivotal point in the broken frontier dividing the Franks, Celts and Gauls of the west and south from the Germans of the east and north. The centuries-old contest between Latin and German has surged back and forth over this city, broken in eddies around it, and this contest has continually renewed with Metz as its central point in the plans of their opposing strategies; for Metz is the most important key in the barrier between Latin and Germanic civilizations. Metz and Strasbourg are the two western gates of Germany."

"The Romans used Metz as their northern base against the Germanic barbarians, and they connected it by military roads with Toul, Verdun, and other camps in the north. From Metz, the Roman legions made their incursions into the impenetrable Black Forest, to the east, and into the forest and swamp lands of the north and west. Metz was the point in the plans of their opposing strategies; for Metz is the most important key in the barrier between Latin and Germanic civilizations. Metz and Strasbourg are the two western gates of Germany."

"The country all about Metz is strategic, and consequently, forbidden ground. Tourists with pronounced camera tendencies have never been encouraged around the fortress. The city lies in a fertile, pleasant valley, which widens out into the high plateau of the north and which narrows toward the mountainous French frontier. It is upon the heights, the craggy hills, the passes, the gorge-broken, narrow valleys, the steep and precipitous slopes, the powerful detached forts which guard the city of Metz and its valley running between France and Germany are planned. These works have been constructed around the city by the score, another French secret, and concealed far more than six miles before the outskirts of Metz."

"The city itself is situated on the confluence of the Sille and Moselle, about eleven miles east of the French frontier. It is built on a high plateau, and upon the islands of the Moselle. Much of the city is composed of narrow, irregular streets, lined with ancient, picturesque buildings. There are some new and imposing structures in the town, however, and some straight streets. Even in times of peace, Metz makes plain that its calling is war. Though it has about 75,000 inhabitants, the peace garrison of 25,000 men, the peace attention on every thoroughfare and promenade. Around the city and within it are the huge barracks of the soldiers."

"The country around Metz, a rise and fall of evergreen woodlands, is beautiful. The heights and hills are not only heavily forested, but are also unusually broken and irregular, composing ground that is as favorable as possible for attacking military operations. The forts of Metz were begun on a large scale by the French, and they have been strengthened through all their years of possession by the Germans."

TRADING OF MAGEE TO BLOCK FEDERALS

Organized Ball Still Making Counter Moves to Check Outlaws From Grabbing Off Major Stars.

(By Hal Sheridan.) New York, Jan. 5.—Organized Baseball is still waging war on the Federal League. This was plainly evidenced by the trading of Sherwood Magee to the Phillies to the Braves. The Phillies were not very anxious to lose Magee and it is doubtful if Boss Stallings of the world's Champions, could offer enough men in exchange to make the Phillies' management make the trade just for the trade's sake. Boss H. Magee was about ready to hop to the Reds and the Phillies decided to their part in the war on the "Outlaws" by trading the star outfielder to the Braves. It was pretty certain Magee wouldn't jump from the World's Champions to the Reds.

The National League moguls—and their American brothers too—propose to be known as the Chicago organization. But when they make deals like the Magee swap—an out and out war move—it is pretty certain that Organized Baseball is warring a little.

Magee will come in mighty handy up Bostonway at that. Stallings has need of a star gardener of the brand of the Phillies crack. Magee is a terrific hitter against either right or left hand pitching. All last season Stallings had to juggle his outfield around. He had fair hitters against left hand pitchers who were weak against right handers and other vice versa. He did not have a real slugger in the outer garden. Magee is pretty certain of a regular berth with the Champions.

Americans who were worried for fear the ranking committee of the National Lawn Tennis Association did not act rightly in putting Maurice McLaughlin above Norris Williams as the country's greatest player, can rest easily. Our English brethren also pick McLaughlin. "The Field," a London Sporting publication, declared in a recent issue that the Californian is the greatest tennis player of all time. Williams' one victory over him does not entitle him to first honors, it was stated.

Y. M. C. A. TEAM TO PLAY AT WATERTOWN

First Basketball Five at Association to Organize Wednesday Evening—Material is Good.

It is unusual to arrange games before a team is organized. The Y. M. C. A. basketball first quintet will play the Watertown team at Watertown on next Saturday evening. The organization of the Y. M. C. A. team will take place on Wednesday evening in the office of Physical Director C. E. Leak, and a captain will be chosen. As the material which will form a winning five at the association has played together for some months at one time or another, it is not surprising that Leak arranged the first game so soon. Fetter, Mott, Brown and many other players of experience will try for places on the five. Mr. Leak wishes to see all men interested in playing on the first or second team to report at his office tomorrow evening at eight-thirty.

CHURCH BASKETBALL TEAMS IN PRACTICE

Six Teams Engage In Semi-Weekly Drills In Preparation for Strenuous Schedule Ahead.

Basketball teams from the Methodist, Congregational, Presbyterian, Catholic, Episcopal and Baptist churches are beginning to settle down for some hard practices this week and a part of next. Last evening from 6:30 until 8 o'clock the Methodist team used the high school gym for a drill. From 8 until 9:30 o'clock the Catholic team turned over the use of the gym to the Congregational team, champions of the league last winter. The schedule for the remainder of the week is as follows:

Starting on the 18th of January, Mandel will box Frankie Callahan eight rounds at Memphis, this making the 25th meeting of the boys, and on the 26th Joe McKles, Pat Brown at Superior, Wisconsin, in a ten-round no-decision affair. After the meeting with Brown, Mandel will go to New York and will box one of the top notchers at the Garden, then he will rest up for the championship match with Welsh, which will more than likely stage in New Orleans late in February, during the Mardi Gras week.

MANY INJURIES MARKED 1914 SEASON; COBB, SMITH AND PASKERT AMONG PLAYERS HURT

The year 1914 was peculiarly fruitful of baseball injuries and mishaps. In the National league Red Smith's injury on the last day of the season was, of course, the most spectacular damage of the year. The most consistently injured was George Paskert of the Phillies. Ty Cobb turned up a lot of trouble by breaking a thumb while thumping a butcher in Detroit, and was otherwise injured earlier in the race.

A trained fighting man should not be traveling around making money when he might be fighting for his country. Freddy Welsh has also been criticized for leaving England just when the demand for volunteers was becoming insistent; but Welsh never was in the army, never had a military training and if he went to the war would be just an ordinary soldier like a few hundred thousand others, whereas as a lightweight champion he is a person of some importance and is rapidly acquiring a fine fortune. He had a hard choice.

Just a little more than two years ago it was Ad Wolgast who chirped: "Gee, look at poor old Nelson. Every time the Bat starts he takes a licking and all for a few hundred dollars where he used to make thousands. When I get my first licking I quit the game for good. I'm not going to have a hundred kids running around the country telling how they hung it on Ad Wolgast, former champion." And yet we have Wolgast with us. He lost his title just a few days after his talk. November 28, 1912, and he's forgotten his promise to retire once he got his bumpings.

Johnny Kilbane's New Year's bout of six rounds against Patsy Brannigan at Pittsburgh marked his first appearance in that city as a champion. Kilbane's last appearance there was in 1909, when he scored successive knockouts over Mike Bartley and Jeff Gaffney. It was in Pirate town, too, that Kilbane got paid for a fight which he did not fight—an incident which he most strenuously serves right. Kilbane was matched to meet Jimmy Walsh, the Boston bantam. Walsh ducked. But Kilbane dressed for the fight and appeared in the ring. Johnny got something like $500 for his end, as he had the promoters nailed to an iron-clad contract.

Bravley, California, which is a member of the Imperial Valley league, which plays winter baseball, has some fastidious fans. On its ball club it has big Jeff Pfeffer, George Cutsaw, Gus Getz and Charlie McCarthy of the Brooklyn Nationals; Beals Becker of Philadelphia and Bert Daniels of Cincinnati. Yet the fans are dissatisfied. The team was expected to start with a rush, but instead dumped seven of its first nine games. The fans then circulated a petition asking that some "bushers," who would at least exert themselves, be hired.

The mail is slower than the wire, but sometimes it is safer. A Cleveland light promoter wired a Los Angeles boxing manager (pretend) like this the other day: "What terms for your lightweight on or about January 25?" And back came this telegram: "COLLECT—And I do both end match money all the way from Los Angeles." Telegram received. I appreciate your kind consideration. I assure you that you will make no mistake by putting on my lightweight, as he fits all the time and never stunts. He is the big drawing card in every city. He will get you the money. Name us a flat guarantee or best percentage. Again I assure you that you will make no mistake by putting on this boy. Wishing you a Merry Christmas, I remain, with best wishes, fraternally yours.

PLAN TO OPPOSE REPEAL OF LAWS

Hunters and Fishers of Rock and Jefferson Counties Will Strenuously Object to Opening Koon.

Kooning for Seining.

Word that plans are being made to attempt to have section 458 of chapter 135 of the revised statutes repealed by the next legislature so that seining for carp and rough fish as Lake Koshkonong will be permitted, has raised a storm of protest from hunters and fishers of both Rock and Jefferson counties. It is rumored that the men behind the deal plan to do extensive work of their project in the coming summer and fall. Those opposed to the plan state the seining spoils the game fish, drives the ducks away, kills the wild rice feeding grounds and is of no real benefit to anyone but the seiners, who make enormous profits. Edward Karel of Port Atkinson is said to be the man seeking the right to do the seining and it is alleged his agents have offered property owners around the lake a dollar a ton for all rough fish caught in front of their property. That the repeal of the law will be tough, most strenuously by hunters and fishers generally is conceded by those who are in touch with the affair.

The hearings will be held in the assembly rooms of the Merchants and Manufacturers' association in the Germania building. There are four forms of application pending. The Joseph Schlitz Brewing Co., Pabst Brewing company and the Rockwell Manufacturing company have made application for lower rates. The railroad companies have filed application for higher rates. By this method all the information regarding switching rates will be brought before the commission at one time.

AT MYERS THEATRE.

"Under Cover," Rol Cooper Meg rue's entertaining mystery melodrama of the secret service, transatlantic smuggling and the smart set, under the direction of Selwyn & Company, which is proving the most popular play produced in America since the memorable "Within the Law"—was at so sponsored by this firm—will be the attraction at the Myers January 7th. Originally produced in Boston on Christmas afternoon, 1913, "Under Cover," by reason of the irresistible appeal of its fresh and exciting story, scored an instantaneous success, and is now being played in the most successful theatres of the country. This season it is the current sensation in New York and Chicago, in both of which cities it has for months been delighting audiences nightly that are to be gauged only by the capacity of the theatres. The announcement will be the same that appeared at the Plymouth Theatre, Boston, in the final program of that remarkable engagement.

AT MYERS THEATRE.

Davy Jones, who plays the principal comedy role of Rainsmit in "Hanky Panky," to be seen at Myers Theatre tonight is a nephew of Sam Bernard, the famous comedian, and whenever his professional engagements will permit, Davy likes to be near his famous uncle. He can be as much like him as twin brothers, and during the London engagement of "The Bell of Bond Street," (the old "Girl from Kays") Davy frequently went on in Sam's place without the audience being any the wiser. Davy even called himself Sam Bernard, Jr., and decided to take that as his legal name.

But Fate intervened. Sam has a brother Dick, and Dick is married. About a year ago he became the father of a future comedian and immediately decided to call the youngster Sam. Davy's heart was broken. Here was a real Sam Bernard, Jr., come to rob him of his beloved name and there was no recourse. Dick refused to change the name and Davy had to make the best of it. He sent young Sam a silver cup with his best wishes and a suitable inscription on it and decided to remain Davy Jones for the rest of his life. Since he has made a reputation for after another, he is a little more content than he was a year ago.

India, with its savage tribes and wild animals, has been the source of many a tale of stirring adventure, but none are half so thrilling or interesting as Mr. George Kleine's latest photo drama production "Between Savage and Tiger," which comes to the Myers Theatre on Wednesday evening, January 6th.

In this modern product the marvelous Cines Company have outdone themselves. They have united a tale of romance, faith and heroism with a series of adventures with savages, tigers and wild animals that are so thrilling and realistic that the spectators can hardly sit in their seats with excitement and follow one situation after another with suspended breath.

No animal or jungle picture that has ever been produced has carried with it such marvelous and sustained interest as this. George Kleine's biggest success.

AT MYERS THEATRE.

It begins to look as though Janesville might succeed in getting the Gilbert-Sullivan Opera company to appear here. A number of advance subscription orders have been received at the box office and if sufficient more come in to warrant the company appearing here they will appear on Monday, February 8th, in

"The Mikado" and a grand double bill on Tuesday, February 9th, "Pinafore" and "Trial by Jury," with De Wolf Hopper and one of the hundred people, an augmented orchestra, chorus of splendid singing voices and a unique scenic investiture.

RAILROAD RATES.

While it may be a trifle late to discuss the recent railroad rate decision still this one particular ruling of this supreme body in matters of national importance, has done much to treasure business interests, and it is interesting to note what the "Nation's Business," a publication issued monthly by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, has to say on this question. In brief it states that "in twenty-seven years the railroads have not effected any general advance in freight rates for any given territory. The net income of the railroads in the great commercial and industrial region of the country, extending from the Atlantic coast to the Mississippi and from the Ohio and the Potomac to Canada, is now smaller than it was in the interests of the public and of the railroads. These are recent statements of the Interstate Commerce Commission, made after a study which in reality has extended over four years. For more than a generation the freight rates of the country have in effect been calculated upon the rate of seventy-five cents a hundred pounds between New York and Chicago.

"Since 1910 the railroads have been contending before the Interstate Commerce Commission for higher freight rates. On July 23 of this year their latest concrete requests were a second time refused. The Interstate Commerce Commission, however, that there was no fault in principle but by reason of defects in method. At the same time the railroads had opened to them some sources of new revenue which they have since put into effect, such as increases in passenger fares and charges of two dollars a car for re-consigning freight. Upon a large part of the freight moving in the four states west of Pittsburgh they were in fact given permission to increase freight rates by five per cent—advances which are now in effect.

"Within two days after the decision at the end of July, war began in Europe, and its commercial effects in the United States fell immediately upon the railroads. In September the commission granted further hearings concerning circumstances which it now says, in a decision of December 16, collectively present a new situation. In view of this new condition of affairs, involving new revenues still lower than those the commission had already declared inadequate and high rates of interest made still higher in the face of obligations maturing within three years to an aggregate of more than half a billion dollars, the commission declares that the railroads eastward of Pittsburgh and Buffalo may increase their freight rates horizontally by five per cent and may do it as early as December 26. They may not, however, use this permission to increase rates on goods carried by lake and rail, coal, iron ore, or some other articles to which peculiar circumstances apply, such as recent increases or special investigations on the part of the commission. Of the new revenues the roads are to keep separate account and make report to the commission.

"The property investment of the thirty-five railroad systems in question approximates seven billion dollars. This region produces seventy-two per cent of the manufactures of the country and seventy per cent of the output of mines and quarries. These are indications of the greatness of the industrial and commercial community, the interests of which are involved in a decision which the commission itself justifies by citing the great necessity that transportation facilities be kept abreast of the requirements of the shipping public."

A LESSON TO ALL.

It has been stated that Janesville has produced two real inventors and the neither really profited by their brain children. This may be true but Janesville and Rock county has produced a lot of men whose word was as good as their bond, but perhaps not men like the one who at the age of twenty-six was struggling for a living and died at the age of seventy in New York recently, leaving an estate appraised at $77,000,000. According to an exchange, he was "modest, and retiring, having many friends but few intimates. His word was as good as his bond. He was recognized everywhere as one of the ablest financiers in the United States. His success was due to his prompt recognition of the value of electric propulsion in street car service. He realized that the introduction of the trolley car meant a revolution in the transportation of the multitudes in our cities. Just at this time, too, important discoveries in the manufacture of gas for domestic consumption were announced. In these two public utilities, the street car service and municipal gas and electric lighting, the late Anthony N. Brady, in fact, related the first millions of his large fortune. He was a firm believer in the conservation of our water powers and financed the Chattanooga and Tennessee River Power company which sought to make of Chattanooga a still greater industrial center. The project, estimated to cost a million, required fully $6,000,000 for its completion. But it was completed, because Mr. Brady had given his word that the work should be done and his word, as we have said, was always good. Few capitalists of our time have done more to increase the public comfort than Mr. Brady. It is charitable to suppose that these facts were not known to the editor of one of New York's dailies who recently spoke of Mr. Brady's estate as "a useless fortune."

TIME TO STOP.

Leslie's Weekly calls attention to the following editorial to the effect that has emanated from various sources of the actions of the German ambassador, Von Bernstorff, relative to his actions in the present European crisis. Leslie's editor is sound in his argument and it is worth considering when he says: "No matter where the sympathies of fair-minded men may go as between the contestants in the great struggle abroad, a sense of fairness and justice should prevail. It is neither fair nor just for Charles Francis Adams to speak of the German ambassador, at Washington, Count Von Bernstorff as 'being utterly unfit for his position.' Mr. Adams thinks that the ambassador has done too much unnecessary talking and has sought to instruct Americans as to their obligations and duties. We fail to see the justice of this accusation against one of the most popular foreign representatives at Washington. The German ambassador, like the ministers of all other foreign powers, has done his best to present to the American people every argument he could in behalf of the good faith and just purposes of his country. He would have been derelict had he done otherwise. We fail to see that any of the ambassadors of the great powers can be fairly accused of being over-zealous in representing their respective governments, in this, the greatest of all the neutral countries. We say this with no intent to violate the strict neutrality which Leslie's has preserved in dealing with the war."

THE JEW VINDICATED

It is pleasing to note that the press all through the country, throughout the civilized world, in fact even in the warring districts have exonerated the Jew from any stigma of cowardice that may have clung to his religious belief through the past ages. One exchange of prominence says that "never again will the bravery of the Jews be questioned. The European war has found them at the front on many a battlefield, fighting shoulder to shoulder with their compatriots among the various belligerents. Discussing at a meeting of the Jews in New York City the topic, 'The Jew as a Citizen in the Country of His Domicile,' Dr. Henry M. Leipziger declared that from all of the countries involved in the conflict came reports that the Jews were rallying to the support of the country of their adoption, and were conducting themselves with heroic valor. In the German army have received the Iron Cross, and in the Russian army have won distinction. The ability of the Jews to remain a distinct people and yet to support loyally the country of their birth or adoption is one of the marvels of history."

Editorial writers throughout the state have remarked upon the similarity of the editorials of several state papers. When they are all lined out at so much per insertion, released for the same day, it is not surprising they are similar. This is what might be called selling the birthright of the average newspaper for a mess of pottage just as Esau did in biblical days.

Every once in a while Roosevelt bursts forth into print. His latest idea is for a world's peace. In this he is not alone. The majority of the people want it, but with the Hague Tribunal for rent, the dove of peace killed and eaten in some German general's pot pie, what chance has the rest of the world to realize its ideals.

How about those skating ponds for the boys and girls that received their skates for Christmas? It will soon be marble time. Why not get busy and try out the plan that Beloit finds successful and make ponds for the children to enjoy in safe places, not on the river?

The Milwaukee Journal has a fit every few minutes when anything that it has exploited explodes into the thin air as a bubble that is pricked. The John Doe proceedings on the defeat of the ten amendments is one of the latest of the exploitations that has failed.

Residents of Rock county live in the ideal garden spot of the middle west and they should appreciate the gifts that nature has given. Not only is it the garden spot but it is also one of the few sections of the country that has not been seriously affected by the deficiency democratic tariff tax, commonly called the war tax. It is something to be most thankful for.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT.

Snow, snow, Snow, Beautiful snow, Filling the corner-lot chump Full of woe, For he has to shovel A mile round his house So his neighbors Won't swear And tear out Their hair From wading knee-deep In the beautiful stuff. Gosh! It is tough! He bends His old back Till he hears It crack And shovels till noon With many a wrench Like a German dragon At work in a trench He rises next morn From his hard bed of pain, And he finds he must do it All over again. So when the clouds hover And snow storms draw nigh, Please shed a stray tear For the corner lot guy.

EXPECT VALUATION
DECISION ON LOCAL WATER PLANT SOON

Chairman Roemer States That Purchase Price Will Be Determined Before February 1st.

Chairman Roemer of the state railroad commission stated yesterday at the close of the local water works hearing at Madison that the purchase price for the city of Janesville on the part of the Janesville Water company will be fixed before February 1st. Final arguments were made before the commission yesterday by M. G. Jeffris of Jeffris, Mouat, Oestreich and Avery, representing the water company and by Attorney W. H. Dougherty representing the city.

The water company contends that $378,100 is a fair price on the plant and that the city should not be allowed to fix the price at a lower figure. According to the claims of the company, the original cost of the plant was $260,000. An item of ten cents per gallon of water was added to build and equip the plant.

The company claims $43,000 for the construction work and $20,000 for paying expense of means of street paving. The depreciation estimated by the company totals $34,900 and the "going value" over which so much argument has been advanced, is listed at $64,000.

The figures advanced by the city and as follows: Reproduction cost, $217,000; cost of the plant, $43,000; engineering, $32,645; material and supplies, $2,565; non-operating, $235. The total cost of the plant is estimated at $255,367 and the depreciation $35,592, making a total physical valuation of $219,775.

The city did not attempt to place any estimate upon the so-called "going value," holding that it is not a separate and distinct item which can be reckoned in money value. The valuation made by the engineers is merely evidence to be considered by the commission and their findings may be between the two limits—the claim of the city and that of the company. When the final valuation is announced, the city will set against raising the money and as soon as this is done, the city is entitled to possession of the plant. Either party has the right to appeal to the supreme court.

From the testimony offered during the numerous hearings held during the summer and fall, it is estimated by city officials that the final figure will be in the neighborhood of two hundred and sixty thousand dollars.

The decision of the state supreme court in the matter of the alternative redress action against City Clerk J. P. Hammardlund for the collection of reassessment costs will be made on the twelfth instant.

FINDS DEFECTIVES
IN RURAL SCHOOLS

Apparent Connection Between Decayed Teeth and Morbid Condition of Children Discovers.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 5.—The first complete investigation of the defects of country school children was reported by Dr. V. C. Bennett of Rhineland, deputy state health officer, when he sent in a report for Onondaga county. Dr. Bennett found an apparent relation between decayed teeth and certain morbid conditions among school children. Of 134 cases of children who complained of earache, 75 per cent had decayed teeth; of 180 mouth breathers, 80 per cent had decayed teeth, and of 56 who had goitre, 64 per cent had decayed teeth.

Dr. Bennett's examination covered tests of 1,041 children who are attendants upon the rural schools of Onondaga county. Of this number 533, or 51 per cent, were males. He found that 9 of the children were designated as "sickly," that 8.7 per cent had abnormal skin, pale and yellow; that 5.8 per cent had eyes matted, dull and swollen; that 12.5 per cent had defective vision in one eye, and that 16.4 per cent had eyes inflamed, dull and eyes. He found that 304 children, or 29 per cent, were addicted to head-aches, that 18.7 per cent complained of earache, that 16.3 per cent had defective hearing in one ear, that 4.2 per cent had defective hearing in both ears, that 30 per cent complained of colds, that 31 per cent were nervous. He found that two-tenths of 1 per cent were imbecile, that seven-tenths of 1 per cent were stupid, and that 10 per cent were dull. He discovered that 85 children, or 8 per cent, were using tobacco, 8 per cent were six years of age, four were 7, two were 9, and the others between 10 and 18 years of age. Of the number using tobacco, 32 per cent were sickly, 22 per cent were "cotton sick," 26 per cent were "dull," 25 per cent were stupid, 7 per cent were "bright," and 9 per cent "very bright."

That this method of making school inspection should take the place of inspection by medical men," says Dr. Bennett, "it is believed there are advantages in this method in some respects over the other. For instance, a school inspector can observe a child at work or at his play, and there are many moral, mental and physical properties brought out under these conditions that might escape the observation of the medical inspector entirely. It would seem that a combination of the two methods might be almost ideal. At any rate, in the absence of a regular medical inspector, this method has a great deal in its favor and as far as can be observed no drawbacks."

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—It Did Seem Too Good to be True—

BY F. LEIPZIGER

LITTLE GIRL HAD
CHRONIC COUGH

WAS TERRIBLY RUNDOWN AND WEAK—MOTHER TELLS HOW SHE WAS CURED BY VINOL.

Philadelphia, Pa.—"My little girl aged thirteen years had the whooping cough which settled into a chronic cough, with a run-down system and lung trouble. She had to stay at home from school while being treated by the doctor, and nothing seemed to help her. I saw Vinol advertised and decided to try it. I soon noticed an improvement, and after giving her four bottles her cough is gone, her strength has returned and she has a good appetite. We think there is nothing like Vinol."—Mrs. M. White, Philadelphia, Pa.

What Vinol did for this little girl it will do for others, for it is the healing, curative, tissue building influence of the medicinal elements of the extract of cod's livers aided by the blood making, strengthening properties of tonic iron which makes Vinol so successful in such cases, and children like to take Vinol because it is pleasant, and it is much better for them than "cough medicines" which have no strengthening power, while Vinol builds up the body and throws off the cough.

Remember, if Vinol fails to benefit we return your money. Smith Drug Co., Janesville, Wis.

Wastefulness.

The average wheat production per acre in Minnesota is about thirteen bushels. In Denmark it is 38; in Holland, 34; in England, 32 bushels. Politicians talk of the conservation of national resources. What of the conservation of soil values, the greatest asset the nation has? And what of the wastefulness which extracts from the soil but one-third of the riches it is capable of bearing? The prodigality of congress, the wanton carelessness of cities, the improvidence of our spendthrifts are of minimum importance compared with the agricultural waste in potential yields and the strange madness that changes annually thousands of prospectively good farmers into mediocre and sallow flat dwellers.—Public Ledger.

THE MASTER KEY

By John Fleming Wilson

BY SPECIAL ARRANGEMENT FOR THIS PAPER. BY ARRANGEMENT MADE WITH THE UNIVERSAL FILM MANUFACTURING CO.

Thomas Gallon was old fashioned in many ways. Instead of using 80 per cent dynamite everywhere and detonating it by electricity, he still insisted on using old fashioned powder and tamping it with a fuse, a sign of his obstinacy.

She climbed into the ore car and tried to unset the brakes. It was her only hope. Then she realized that the cable was still attached. She climbed down by the light of the now flaming fuse and unhooked the heavy shackle. A moment later she was again in the lower. With strength bred of desperation she managed to release it.

The heavy car slowly creaked away down the dark tunnel. Then it came over Ruth that she was not strong enough to stop its momentum on the long trestle that led to the dump. She was fleeing death by fire and gas and rock only to be hurled headlong over the lofty end of the track. A vision rose before her of being flung through the bright California air right at her father's feet. Behind her she heard the sputtering of the last few inches of the fuse. She crouched in the car. Just as it emerged from the tunnel's mouth it was as if a huge hand thrust the car forward. The boom of the explosion deafened her. She stood up now in the wildly speeding car and cried, "John, John!"

CHAPTER IV.

The Rescue.

AFTER talking to the engineer, John Dorr had missed Gallon and saw him at the anchor-plate of the ore cable car up the hill, across the gulch from the trestle.

"John," said Gallon, "I am getting old. Years ago there were two partners of us prospected this country, and we found free milling gold. I say 'we,' John, but there was a little girl. I kept the location of that mine to myself. There was trouble, John. He suspected me."—He turned his dimming eyes on the stalwart young man in an entreaty. "I guess you know why I tried to keep those plans to myself."

"Who is the man?" demanded the engineer, patting the great iron ore car with his hand as a man pacifies a restless animal.

At that moment there came a faint cry from a miner on the trestle.

"What does he want?" demanded Gallon peevishly.

John Dorr's eyes saw the miners in the camp, wives and all, screaming out and staring upward. They had got the meaning of that cry. He thought to himself, "Where is Ruth?" It came over him that she was bringing luncheon to her father and himself in the mine. He stared up at that dark hole in the hillside and saw an eddy of smoke. Instantly he knew that she must be somewhere within that dark depth.

With all the force of his lungs he bawled down to the engineer, who was staring stupidly upward; swung himself into the bucket, pulled his signal whistle out of his pocket and blew it furiously.

The engineer seemed to listen for a moment, then looked off his brake and blew his answering whistle. A second later the bucket was swinging down the lofty cable across the gulch.

If it was not clear in John's mind how he could rescue Ruth, the quickest way to get to the trestle was by the bucket; then he would have those long, long stretches of ties to traverse, and when he reached that smoke filled tunnel could he get through? He must. He steadied himself and thought, his eyes fixed on the hole in the hillside.

The bucket was still surging a hundred feet away from his goal when he saw the ore car emerge and in it the slender form of Ruth. No one realized better than he that her strength was not equal to setting those brakes and that she had escaped one death only to meet another.

His trained eye caught sight of one chance. He yelled down to the engineer, "Quick, quick, Tubbs!"

The engineer's blank face upturned toward him seemed that of a man dazed by imminent disaster, but John Dorr's imperious will reached across and down that space. The engineer pulled his throttle wide open, and as he did so John Dorr swung himself over the edge of the bucket and, hanging down by his knees right over the trestle, waited for the oncoming car.

"Ruth!" he cried. "Ruth, come to me!"

He saw her turn toward him, balance herself in the awaying ore car and lift up her arms. He stretched his own down, and as the mass of steel and ore dashed under him, caught her up. He did not hear the crash that followed. All he saw was the upturned face of the girl he loved, swinging a hundred feet above death in his strong arms, safe.

About 3,000 miles away a dark and splendid woman was looking critically at her maid. "Eloise," she was saying, "I don't like to be waked this early in the morning. I have told you often enough about this. What do you mean by disturbing me for a mere letter?"

"You told me, madame, always to call you when there was a letter in this handwriting."

The woman under the roseate coverlets held out her jeweled hand. The maid gave one swift glance at her mysterious avaricious eyes and vanished. As she closed the door after her the envelope, torn into shreds, fell to the floor.

Mrs. Darnell sat up alertly and quickly perused the slow, even script written on the old fashioned blue lined paper of a country hotel:

Dear Cousin Jean—Since you last heard from me I have found Gallon. I am leaving today for Silent Valley. His "Master Key" mine is only ten miles from there. Won't he be surprised to see me? I will let you know later how our scheme comes out.

Goodbye for now. Keep mum! As ever, HARRY.

When Gallon thought he had killed Wilkerson he became infected with the ineradicable disease of dread. In his conversation with John Dorr he had given first expression to his feelings. The young mining engineer on account of his youth did not fully understand that men do not speak of such things until age—loosener of tongues as well as of the chords of life—suddenly oppresses them—makes them feel helpless, brings them to a realization of the ultimate fact of death means. He had barely caught the appeal in the old man's voice when he had comprehended Ruth's peril.

The old man, with shaking limbs, had watched the rescue. When he saw that his daughter was safe he also perceived the solution of his problem. Here was a quick mind needed to protect Ruth's property. Somewhere in that hill was the richest of California gold. Once more he said to himself, "John Dorr can find 'the master key.'"

Feeling himself too weak to meet the girl who was now clinging limply to her rescuer and also discerning in his own slowing pulse that his time was short, he went down the hill, crossed the gulch without a word to the wondering miners and entered the bungalow.

A moment later John Dorr entered with Ruth in his arms. The old man merely looked up. "Always look after her, John," he said slowly, "and if Wilkerson comes back!"

Dorr looked at the old man with pity in his eyes. "She isn't hurt," he said, gently putting her down on the couch. Then he straightened up. "I'll always look after her!" he promised.

Gallon stared over at the white face of his daughter as she lay unconscious on the couch. "Humph!" thus expressing to himself his own comprehension of the fact that there was coming such a period in his own life. He went out without a look backward. When he returned the room was empty. He fingered the books on the table and fell into a state of profound thought. He did not hear the door open behind him.

Ruth, freshly clad and wholly recovered from her experience, wondered at her father's attitude. She stepped softly toward him. He did not turn. She went nearer. She laid her soft hands on his shoulder and then, as if the fingers of life long fear were touching the very nerves of his being, Thomas Gallon slowly twisted his head by a supreme effort of will to see the sight which of all things in the world he did not want to see—the face of his enemy.

By the magic of the strange phantasmagoria which represents our mental processes if we look at them carefully he did see the face of Harry Wilkerson. "A-a-a-h!" he breathed. His eyes closed, compelled by his troubled conscience, but he was recalled by a loved and familiar voice; it was Ruth bending over him, saying, "Father, father, what is the matter?"

The old man suddenly looked up, still fearful that he was to see that feared and hated face. "Ruth!" he said, and it struck him that on her face was a look almost of terror.

He must reassure her. Dread and fear and terror do not belong in the "Father, father, what is the matter?"

Hearts of maidens. By a tremendous effort he pulled himself together and smiled.

"Why, nothing was the matter, child. I was only thinking."

But there was something in his tone that made Ruth draw back. In her innocence she had not learned to discern the difference between the various rude passions that govern this world. She was still afraid. She crept out the door.

Gallon let his head fall on the table upon his empty arms.

As Ruth closed the door softly behind her she saw a light burning in John Dorr's cabin, and there flooded over her a sense of relief that there was some one to whom she could go. Careless of maiden modesty, western girl as she was, obsessed by the fear of that strange scene she had just left in the bungalow, she fled up the hill toward that one beacon that held out hope of life and—did she know it?—love.

Once at the door she knocked hard because it seemed to her that she had been pursued up the hill by some strange and miserable demon.

"John, John!" she cried.

The door was flung open, and he appeared, his bulk filling the yellow opening from jamb to jamb.

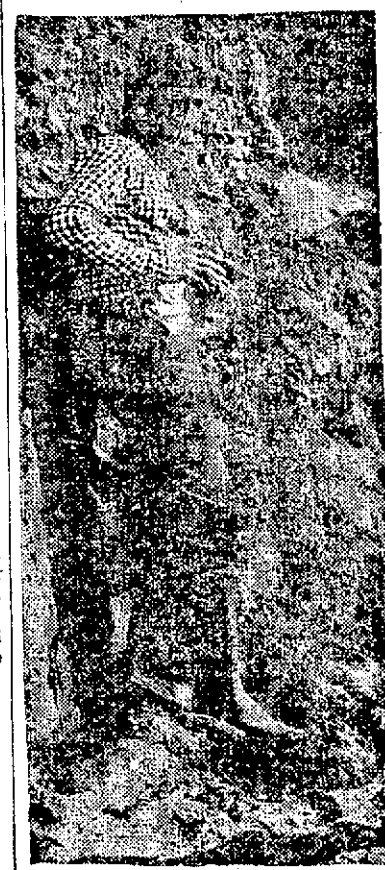

The moment he appeared it came over her that she had done an unconventional thing, yet there was that demon of fear creeping up the hill after her, and she turned her eyes to the kind, brave face of the engineer and held out her slender arms and whispered: "John, I don't understand. Something has happened. I am scared." John Dorr looked down at her fair face for a moment and shut his eyes. Was it true that she had finally come to him? He, too, felt the pressure of dread. Way down the hill, across the gulch drenched in moonlight and shadows, it seemed to him that he saw one of those grotesque and impossible figures, mirages of the desert night. Then he took Ruth into his strong arms.

Thus it is in this world that those whose arms are empty feel the fingers of fear at their throats, and only those whose arms are filled can look boldly into the night and defy the fiends of darkness.

And the man whose arms held nothing, whose hands were clinched in an agony of humiliating fear, saw through the window a figure of a man on horse back on the crest of the hill.

A tall, dark, stern man, who did not dip the porter, got off the Overland express at Silent Valley. The little hamlet lay there like a mirage of some man's dream. There was but one familiar building in the place, and Harry Wilkerson gazed at it and smiled. "Well," he said audibly, "this looks like old times! Now to find Gallon!" It seems that in that clear dusk which marks the border line between life

Wilkerson Remembered That Long Night When He Had Crept to Safety, and death we see things more clearly than at any other time, and Harry Wilkerson, as he looked over the familiar valley, remembered that long night when almost mortally wounded by Thomas Gallon's bullet he had crept to safety. Every peak, gully and gulch was as plain to him as it was on that night, but this time it conveyed a different meaning. During those long hours of agony and thirst years ago this scene had meant to him simply a hell from which he must struggle out. Now it was a paradise he was going to regain.

Dinner
Stories

"Get away from here, or I'll call my husband! threatened the hard-faced woman who had just refused the tramp some food."

"Oh, no, you won't," replied the tramp, "because he isn't home."

"How do you know?" asked the woman.

"Because," answered the man, as he sidled toward the gate, "a man who marries a woman like you is only home at meal times."

It is the custom of a minister in a certain country town to read in church the requests for the prayers of the congregation. Not long ago the minister was absent and a city clergyman who did not know the custom officiated in his place. At the usual time the sexton handed the notices to the minister, explaining what was to be done with them. In a few minutes the congregation was startled to hear:

"A man going to see his wife desires the prayers of the congregation for his safe return."

The notice really read: "A man going to sea, his wife desires the prayers of the congregation for his safe return."

The man of great financial prominence had met with an accident.

"We'll have to probe," said the doctor.

Just at that moment the man recovered consciousness and exclaimed:

"If it's a surgical operation, go ahead; but if it's another investigation, give me an anaesthetic."

She Asks Too Much.

When a woman goes away to spend Sunday, if she would give her husband directions concerning the fourteen or fifteen most important things that ought to be done around the house in her absence, instead of concerning the whole fifty-seven, she would stand more chance of remembering at least some of 'em.—Houston Post.

A housekeeper who wanted a new stove, but had a vague little idea that she could do without it, was trying to settle, satisfactorily, this question. She had been making the rounds of the stores, and knew just the stove she longed to see in her kitchen. The trouble was that the stove she had was not what you could term worn out. She was economical and knew she should not give up her present stove unless it was necessary. Then the new stove became so beautiful in her minds eye.

That night reading the want ads she came across an ad calling for a second hand stove. The result? She sold hers for eight dollars, purchased the new one, and there were two satisfied women—as her stove really was a bargain at eight dollars. Time spent in running through the want ads is time well spent. People who are wise for themselves read and use this page, continually. Does this class include you.

AMERICAN RESOURCES STILL UNDEVELOPED

Alaska is the Greatest of American Unexploited Treasure Troves, Worth Five Hundred Million.

With the great nations of Europe warring their wealth and their resources with freckled, discolored, and weary faces, it is not surprising that more and more people are turning to the vast, undeveloped resources of Alaska. The question of our undeveloped resources is an important one, and it is not too much to say that the future of the nation depends upon it.

In addition to the wonderful agricultural and mineral resources which already have been developed in the United States, and which make this country preeminent in the world in the value of her crops and the production of her minerals, we have vast undeveloped resources. We have more coal, more petroleum, more phosphorus, and more copper than any other country. Our coal fields are estimated to contain over 100,000,000,000 tons of coal, and our petroleum fields are estimated to contain over 1,000,000,000 barrels of oil. Our copper fields are estimated to contain over 100,000,000 tons of copper.

Alaska is the greatest of our undeveloped treasure troves, and it is not too much to say that the future of the nation depends upon it. Alaska is a vast, undeveloped land, and it is not too much to say that the future of the nation depends upon it. Alaska is a vast, undeveloped land, and it is not too much to say that the future of the nation depends upon it.
